Apparitions of Asia Josephine Park 2014-09-01 Walt Whitman called the Orient "The Past! the Past!" but East Asia was remarkably present for the United States in the twentieth century. Apparitions of Asia reads American literary expressions during a century of U.S.-East Asian alliance, in which the Far East is imagined as both near and contemporary. Commercial and political bridges across the Pacific generated American literary fantasies of ethical and spiritual accord; Park examines American bards who capitalized on these ties and considers the price of such intimacies for American poets. The book begins its literary history with the poetry of Ernest Fenollosa, who called for "The Future Union of East and West." From this prime instigator of the Gilded Age, Park next considers the Orient of Ezra Pound, who turned to China to lay the groundwork for his poetic ethics. Park argues that Pound's Orient was bound to his America, and she traces this American-Asian nexus into the work of Gary Snyder, who found a native American spirituality in Zen. The second half of Apparitions of Asia considers the creation of Asian America against this backdrop of trans-pacific alliances. Park analyzes the burden of American Orientalism for Asian American poetry, and argues that the innovations of Lawson Fusao Inada offer a critique of this literary past. Finally, she analyzes two Asian American poets, Theresa Hak Kyung Cha and Myung Mi Kim, who return to modernist forms in order to reveal a history of American interventions in East Asia.

Studies in the Sociology of Sport North American Society for the Sociology of Sport. Conference 1999-10-01 A Survey of the History of the Black Church in America from the 1600s to the Present - Bruce P. Matvey Diamond 2022-08-01 The History of the Black Church in America from the 1600s to the Present Curriculum Course For Students at Spelman College is an academic course that seeks to further the student's appreciation for the Black Church. Appreciation as understanding is vital to both the learning process and the learning process; therefore, each person's ability to appreciate and/or learn is distinct and the individual is unique, and therefore, each person's ability to appreciate and/or understand something is measured/or assessed as such. Quite often there exists a defiance among some students of African American studies courses in religious studies. Some don't see the connection or the relevance with religious studies to the careers they pursue their intended careers. With such existing attitudes, it is the opportunity and the responsibility of the professor to explore innovative methods, techniques, and exercises - e.g., guest lecturers, field viewings, travels to religious sites, creation of religious (group), or whatever the professor deems appropriate to ensure the student's opportunity to fulfill the goals and the objectives as set by the professor. Institutions of higher learning called historically black colleges and universities, or HBCUs, exist as institutions that seek to celebrate life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. HBCUs are beacons of light, filled with prepared women and men who have accepted and acknowledged and the challenge to further serve humankind as teachers-role models, demonstrating excellence in whom much is given, much is required" (Luke 12:48).
