A scientist investigating the Aral Sea disaster is drawn into a trap by a former KGB officer. On a hike through Kazakhstan, Jayne and Douglas's marriage unravels when their guide, a veteran of the Soviet-Afghan war, takes an unseemly interest in Jayne. The son of an American ambassador, addicted to the seamy underbelly of a Central Asian city, finally gets in over his head. A tortured missionary struggles to reconcile his sexual desires with his faith. And a young man just back from a long stint in Kyrgyzstan finds his relationship with his fiancée destroyed. Sometimes hilarious, sometimes tragic, but always eerily affecting, these stories show us our world, its lands and peoples through our own eyes.

At the heig Cold War, the US and USSR were racing each other to the moon, missiles in Turkey and in Cuba and w Berlin consumed the archrivals; sending American graduates to remote villages seemed ill-informed. Despit challenges, the Peace Corps program shaped newly independent countries in significant ways: in Ethio constituted half the secondary school teachers in 1961, in Tanzania they helped survey and build road and Nigeria they were integral in the education systems, alongside other programs. Even in the Philipp formerly a U.S. colony, Peace Corps volunteers were welcomed. Aside from these outcomes, the progr foreign policy component, advancing U.S. interests in the recipient countries. Occupying the space between fact and fiction, it exposes cultural fault lines and reveals the changing desires and anxieties of both the traveller and the public. These specially-commissioned essays trace the journeys taken by writers from the pre-revolutionary period right up to the present. They examine a wide range of responses to the problems posed by landscape found both at home and abroad, from the Mississippi and the Southwest to Europe and the Holy Land. Throughout, the contributors focus on the role played by travel writing in the definition and formulation of national identity, and consider the experiences of minority writers as well as canonical authors. This Companion forms an invaluable guide for students approaching this new, important and exciting subject for the first time.

From Stonehenge to Samarkand Fagan 2006-07-20 Ever since Roman tourists scratched graffiti on the pyramids and temples of Egypt over two thousand years ago, people have traveled far and wide seeking the wonders of antiquity. In From Stonehenge to Samarkand, noted archaeologist and popular writer Brian Fagan offers an engaging historical account of our enduring love of ancient architecture--the irresistible impulse to wander strange lands in search of lost cities and forgotten monuments. Here is a marvelous history of archaeological tourism, with generous excerpts from the writings of the tourists themselves. Readers will find Herodotus describing the construction of Babylon; Edward Gibbon receiving inspiration for his seminal work while wandering through the ruins of the Forum in Rome; Gustave Flaubert watching the sunrise from atop the Pyramid of Cheops. We visit Easter Island with Pierre Loti, Machu Picchu with Hiram Bingham, Central America with David Livingstone. Fagan describes the early antiquarians, consumed with a passionate and omnivorous curiosity, pondering the mysteries of Stonehenge, but he also considers some of the less reputable figures like the Earl of Elgin, who sold large parts of the Parthenon to the British Museum. Finally, he discusses the nature of archaeological tourism, from the early romantic wanderings of the solitary figure, communing with the departed spirits of Druids or Mayans, to the cruise-ship excursions of modern times, where masses of tourists hustled through ruins, barely aware of their surroundings. From the Holy Land to the Silk Road, the Yucatan, Angkor Wat, Fagan follows in the footsteps of the great archaeological travelers to retrieve their first impressions in a book that will delight anyone fascinated with the landmarks of ancient civilization.

Immersion Ted Conover 2016-10-24 Over three and a half decades, Ted Conover has ridden the rails with hoboes, crossed the border with Mexican immigrants, guarded prisoners in Sing Sing, and inspected meat at the USDA. His books and articles chronicling these experiences, including the award-winning Newjack: Guarding Sing Sing, have made him one of the premier practitioners of immersion reporting. In Immersion Reporting, the literary cousin to ethnography, travel writing, and memoir—the writer fully steps into a new world or community, participating in its trials, rites, and rituals as a member of the group. The end results of these firsthand experiences are familiar to us from bestsellers such as Nickel and Dimed and Behind the Beautiful Forevers. In a world of wary strangers, where does one begin? Conover distills decades of knowledge into an accessible resource aimed at writers of all levels. He covers how to "get into" a community, how to conduct one's reporting inside, and how to shape and structure the stories that emerge. Conover is also forthright about the consequences of immersion reporting, preparing writers for the surprises that often surface when the work becomes public. Throughout, Conover shares anecdotes from his own experiences as well as from other well-known writers in this genre, including Alex Kotlowitz, Anne Fadiman, and Sebastian Junger. It's a deep-trenches book that all aspiring immersion writers should have in hand as they take that first leap into the world.

What Man Has Done... To Man Jeff Blain 2022-05-04 The Twentieth Century is lauded as the time period in which more technological and scientific advances and breakthroughs were accomplished than all other centuries combined. Probably the most notable progress was in transportation when in the early years, Kitty Hawk's was the first flight which became the jet airplane allowing for global travel and Apollo 11 being our crowning achievement. Henry Ford developed assembly line production of the Model T, the horseless carriage, and the driverless carriage. Transistors gave us the Second Industrial Revolution and are today used everywhere. Computers are known as man's "greatest invention." Health was enhanced with the introduction of polio vaccines. On the social scene, we witnessed the start, at least, of civil and women's rights. And don't forget the impact of the chocolate chip cookie? However, equally etched into the annals of history are the "war to end all wars," the Great Depression, and Vietnam War. What you are about to read will make these pale in comparison. You see, man created in that same span of time the greatest environmental disaster in history, the worst short-term atrocity ever committed, developed the "sickest" place on earth, and chose the most outstanding year in the history of mankind. Read, remember, and make certain to pass on to posterity what man has done to man.
